

BIO Francesco Careri (1966) is Associate Professor at the Department of Architecture of Roma Tre University, where is Director of the Master Environmental Humanities and of the Master Performing Arts and Community Spaces. In 1995 he co-founded the urban art laboratory Stalker, which consists of architects, artists, activists and researchers working experimentally and engaging in actions to create self-organised spaces and situations. With Stalker he develops the method of collective walking in the 'actual territories', the indeterminate or void spaces of the city, which have long been disregarded or considered a problem in traditional architectural practice. From 2009 to 2015 he is Director of the LAC Laboratory of Civic Arts of the University Roma Tre with which he realizes Terza Missione/Public Engagement projects such as Savorengo Ker-la casa di tutti in the Roma Camp Casilino 900. Since 2017 he is scientific responsible together with Prof. Fabrizio Finucci of the research group Laboratorio Circo and together with Prof Giovanni Caudo of the Laboratorio di Città Corviale with which he realizes urban regeneration projects. He is a member of the board of PhD in Landscapes of the contemporary city. Policies, techniques and visual studies, has participated in numerous national research projects (PRIN), is a member of international research groups, has contacts with many foreign universities where he is often invited to hold seminars, workshops and participation in conferences.

His main publications are the books Constant. New Babylon, una città nomade, Testo & Immagine, Torino 2001; Walkscapes. El andar como práctica estética / Walking as an aesthetic practice, Editorial Gustavo Gili, Barcellona 2002, trad.it. Walkscapes.
