

The disappearing line

Climate change, biodiversity and human-nature relationships in the Adriatic City

06.05.24
h 9.15

9.15 | Institutional welcome

Giulia Setti, vice-coordinator B.Sc. in Architectural Design, Politecnico di Milano
Maria Chiara Pastore, coordinator of the Spoke 5 of the National Biodiversity Future Center (NBFC)

Padiglione Nicelli
Campus Arata
Via Scalabrini 113, Piacenza
Politecnico di Milano

9.30 | Introduction

Luca Lazzarini, DASTU/Politecnico di Milano

10.00 | Session 1 | Climate change impacts and biodiversity dynamics in the Adriatic City

Resilience challenges in Rijeka/Fiume region

Lidija Runko Luttenberger, School of Polytechnics, University of Rijeka

Coastal vulnerability assessment due to sea level rise in the Slovenian coastal zone

Mojca Poklar & Valentina Brečko Grubar, University of Primorska

Sustainable Horticulture in Adriatic Urban Environments

Branka Maričić, University of Zadar

11.00 | Coffee break

11.15 | Session 2 | Scenarios, strategies and projects for exploring the future of the Adriatic City

Urban planning for climate change: techniques, technologies and the innovative governance approaches

Filippo Magni, Department of Architecture and Arts, IUAV University of Venice

Incomplete City: which project for the Adriatic city?

Luis Martin, DiST/Politecnico di Torino

Coastal roads. Reshaping everyday life infrastructures for the socio-ecological transition of coastal territories

Chiara Nifosi, DASTU/Politecnico di Milano

The balance between the forces of man and the forces of water in the coastal/maritime landscapes of the Northern Mediterranean

Romana Kačič, KačičLidén Landscape Architects and ABAKKUM Piran

12.35 | Roundtable

With: Giovanni Lanza, Marco Mareggi, Eugenio Morello, Maria Chiara Pastore, Stefano Stabilini, DASTU/Politecnico di Milano.

Ice-breakers: Elham Firouzi and Alejandro Suarez Beltran, Politecnico di Milano

Moderated by: Luca Lazzarini, DASTU/Politecnico di Milano

13.15 | Wrap-up and next steps

For info, please contact luca.lazzarini@polimi.it

Organization committee: Elham Firouzi and Alejandro Suarez Beltran.